By Associated Press.
Petrograd, via London, March 22.—It was unofficially announced this morning that the Galacian fortress of Przemyśl surrendered to the Russians today.

The siege of Przemyśl, an Austrian stronghold in the province of Galicia, has been under way since the early days of the war. It has been a bitter and relentless siege, which has never been relaxed.

With the fall of Przemyśl, the only important fortified town in Galicia which is still in the hands of the Austrians is Cracow, in northwestern Galicia, close to the German border.

In the early days of the war the Russian offensive campaign, as outlined unofficially, contemplated the invasion of Germany through East Prussia on the north, and simultaneously into Silesia from Galicia. The Russians succeeded in penetrating Galicia, but the successes of the Austrians in holding Przemyśl and Cracow blocked attempts to invade Germany across the Silesian border.

The siege of Przemyśl has been one of the most picturesque phases of the war in the east.

The garrison of Przemyśl originally numbered 60,000 or 80,000 men, but sorties and shells must have cut a considerable number of thousands from that total. The besieging army is understood to number about 120,000 officers and men.

This force will now march on the strong Austrian fortress of Cracow, 100 miles to the east of Przemyśl, it being the announced determination of the Russian commander-in-chief to reduce the ancient Polish capital as speedily as possible.

Great enthusiasm was manifested in Petrograd, on the receipt of the news. Crowds of people thronged the streets, cheering and indulging in patriotic demonstrations.

London, March 22.—Simultaneous offensive movements against the German, Austrian and Turkish armies, from the Baltic to the Black Sea, have been undertaken by the armies of Russia, and in some sections definite progress is reported.

In the extreme north, the Germans are retiring from Memel, East Prussia, and the Russians are believed to have begun another drive at Tilsit.

The Russian army in the Caucasus has announced a victory over the Turks on the Black Sea coast in Turkish Armenia.

Hostilities have been resumed between Austria and Serbia and Montenegro. A dispatch says Austrian troops made an artillery attack, lasting several days, against Montenegrin positions, but were unable to follow it up.

Berlin, March 22.—A report published today says $2,250,000,000 have been subscribed for the second German war loan. This means that money to finance the war until late autumn has been secured.

London, March 22.—The Russians are now rapidly nearing Czernowitz, in Bukowina, and have only to cross the river Pruth to capture the city. Storms have prevented fighting at the Dardanelles, according to reports received here.

London, March 22.—A dispatch from Amsterdam says that an attack by a German aeroplane yesterday, on a Dutch steamer, has caused an outburst of popular feeling in Holland.

Paris, March 22.—Zeppelins raided Calais early today, from the direction of the sea, but French artillery drove them off. No damage was done.

AMERICANS ARE DROWNED

By Associated Press.
Constantinople, March 22.—Lieutenant Commander William F. Bricker, of the United States converted yacht Scorpion, and three sailors, were drowned March 20, while attempting to reach their vessel in a rowboat. The Scorpion was anchored in the Bosphorus off Constantinople.

CLAIM RUSS DRIVEN BACK

By Associated Press.
Berlin, March 22.—An official statement issued today says the Russians have been driven from Memel, East Prussia, after hard fighting. A Russian mob, the report declares, looted the city, and carloads of goods were conveyed across the frontier.

PREPARE NOTE TO ENGLAND

By Associated Press.
Washington, March 22.—It was definitely stated at the White House today that a note to Great Britain, making representations on some features of the order in council, is being framed, and will be dispatched to London in a few days. The basis of the representations was not disclosed.

Representations to Germany for reparation for the loss of the American sailing ship William P. Frye, and her cargo, sunk in the south Atlantic by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, also are being prepared and will be dispatched to Berlin in two or three days.

FUND TO AID

By Associated Press.
El Paso, Texas, March 22.—A letter to the Villa agent at Washington, from one of Villa's generals, says that the alleged tax of 1,000,000 pesos, said to have been imposed on Monterey merchants, was not a forced loan, but a fund subscribed to aid the poor.

NO EXTRA SESSION

By Associated Press.
Washington, March 22.—Formal announcement was made at the White House today that at present President Wilson has no intention of calling an extra session of the Senate, or of Congress, before the beginning of the regular session next December.

It was said that the President sees no prospects of any contingency arising which would cause him to alter his present intention.

By Associated Press.
Indianapolis, March 22.—Louis Watkins, a negro, testified today in the Terre Haute election case, that he had "earned $47, by voting and shooting craps with other repeaters, on election day." He voted about 19 times, he said.

A negro saloon keeper testified that he had been promised "the Agricultural Commission today gambling privileges" for a certain precinct by Chief of Police Holler, if he would get out the registration and vote.

TURNER WILL TEST EMERGENCY STATUTES

By Associated Press.
Columbus, March 22.—An opinion holding that the Beidler tax bill and the Moore oil inspection bill were not passed in accordance with the constitutional requirement that emergency measures must receive a two-thirds vote of both houses, it is said, was prepared today by Attorney General Turner, for transmission late today to the General Assembly.

This attitude is known to be contrary to that held by Governor Willis, who is expected to sign these bills, together with all other emergency measures enacted by the present Legislature, in spite of the opinion. He probably will let opponents of any measure make a test case by filing suit in the Supreme Court. The Attorney General's opinion is expected to affect future legislation by this assembly, however.

GERMANY TO BLAME
SAYS GREY

By Associated Press.
London, March 22.—"War might have been avoided by a European conference when and where Germany desired," Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey told an audience in London this afternoon.

"But Germany refused every suggestion, and on her rests, for all time, the appalling responsibility for the war. We now know that Germany had prepared for war, and only those who have planned for war can prepare for it."

Amid loud cheers he added: "This is the fourth time within living memory, that Prussia has made war upon Europe, and we are determined it shall be the last."

Asking "What is the issue for which we are fighting?" Sir Edward proceeded as follows:

"In due time terms of peace will be put forward by the allies. One essential condition must be the restoration to Belgium of her independent national life, and free possession of her territory."

Carl Metta, another inspector, arrested with him, was also discharged.

FRENCH INFLECT
TWO REVERSES

Paris, March 22.—An official statement issued today says 50 shells were fired into Rheims Sunday, and that French troops inflicted two serious reverses on the Germans in the Argonne region.

ODENWALD IS UNDER GUARD

Washington, March 22.—The Hamburg American liner Odenwald, stopped from leaving San Juan, Porto Rico, yesterday, by shots across her bow, is being held under the recent Congressional resolution empowering the President to prevent supplies going from American ports to ships of the European belligerents at sea.

Officials here feel that the Odenwald may have intended to fit out with guns and ammunition, as an auxiliary cruiser.

ZEPPELINS DROP BOMBS ON PARIS

No Lives Lost and Very Little Property Damaged.

PEOPLE WERE ON LOOKOUT

Raiders Sighted Over Compeigne and Warning Flashed Throughout the French Capital—Lights Put Out and Warm Reception Tendered Invaders by Big Guns in Forts—Populace Excited.

Paris, March 22.—The long expected but scarcely dreaded Zeppelin raid on Paris has taken place. Two of the German air craft appeared over the city, dropped a number of bombs and finally departed just ahead of a squadron of French aeroplanes which were sent to drive them away.

The net results of the raid were small. Certainly there was no panic, for the preparations made by the military authorities for such an event were put into effect and worked like a clock. As to the loss of life, there was none. A very few persons, half a dozen at the outside, were slightly injured, although a number of escapees which bordered on the miraculous were reported. The material damage done was likewise negligible. Half a dozen houses in the outskirts of the city proper and in the nearby suburbs and several factories, especially at Courbevoire and Asnieres, were partially wrecked.

The abortive nature of the aerial attack is explained by the nature of the precautions taken to meet it. The raiders were seen passing over Compeigne, north of which the German lines come nearest to Paris, and word of their approach was telephoned to the military authorities, who with the aid of the police and firemen, soon had every man, woman and child in the entire city prepared.

The night was clear and the sky was studded with stars, whose light seemed to cover Paris with a mantle of snow and made her an easy mark from above. At the time of the attack all of the lights in houses and buildings were out, but the street lamps were burning brightly and the avenues were traced out for the raiders in rows of illuminations. Realizing that the offering of such a target might have dire results, the first act of the authorities after warning the people was to extinguish these beacons. The celerity with which the city was darkened was remarkable. Policemen went about with long poles turning down the lamps and within ten minutes from the time the firemen of Paris went through the streets in automobiles, signaling the alarm with bugles, Paris was simply a black spot under the sky.

The Zeppelins came from the northwest, the larger one flying ahead and a smaller one close behind. The whirring of the motors could be heard plainly by the curious crowds that disregarded police instructions to retire to the cellars, and the excitement was intense, although it was by no means the excitement of fear. The raiders were just over Fort Du Mont Valerian when a gigantic searchlight on the Eiffel tower picked them up. Then the guns of the fort boomed out and the airships, not liking the reception, hurried to the south to St. Cloud, where they turned off to the northeast, crossing the Seine and the Bois Boulogne.

GO TO CHURCH

Above All Days Be Sure to Go on Easter Sunday

GO TO CHURCH EASTER SUNDAY.

Everybody should GO TO CHURCH at this time and thank God for his many blessings.

Churches throughout the country report that there is a revival of religion everywhere. The GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT, which got such an impetus about a year ago, is still booming along. Lest it might lose some of its swing there is now on a big renewal of the GO TO CHURCH slogan.

PRACTICALLY EVERY PERSON ONE MEETS WILL SAY THAT HE BELIEVES IN GOD. MANY ARE READY TO FIGHT AT THE MERE SUGGESTION THAT THEY ARE WITHOUT RELIGION AND FAITH. YET THESE SAME PERSONS WHO PROFESS PROFOUND INDIGNATION AT THE VERY THOUGHT THAT THEY ARE IMPIOUS, WHEN ASKED WHY THEY DO NOT GO TO CHURCH SHRUG THEIR SHOULDERS. THEY MAKE A LAME EXCUSE. OFTEN THEY OFFER NO EXCUSE. CAN ANY MAN WHO PROFFERS FAITH IN GOD, WHO DECLARES THAT HE IS A BELIEVER IN RELIGION, OFFER A VALID REASON WHY HE DOES NOT GO TO CHURCH? IF A MAN WANTS TO WORSHIP GOD HE MUST GO TO CHURCH. THE CHURCH IS THE HOUSE OF GOD. THE LEAST ANY RIGHT THINKING MAN MIGHT DO IS TO SPEND A FEW HOURS WEEKLY IN GOD'S TEMPLE.

Let there be a fine renewal of the GO TO CHURCH movement in this community. If you GO TO CHURCH your duty is only half done. Get your neighbor to go. He will not resent your talk. BECOME A MISSIONARY. DO IT ADROITLY. Call his attention to the GO TO CHURCH movement. Speak to his wife, to his daughter. Everybody can be a missionary. Every church in the land should be filled to its capacity once the GO TO CHURCH movement gets its swing.

By all means—

GO TO CHURCH on Easter Sunday.

Go to church every Sunday.

KITCHENER THREATENS

Liverpool, March 22.—"If this appeal has no effect, I shall have to consider steps that will have to be taken to insure what is required at Liverpool being done," was the declaration made by Lord Kitchener in a letter which he personally handed to James Sexton, secretary of the dockers' union.

Lord Kitchener, who spent the week-end inspecting the Liverpool, Manchester and Birmingham battalions of his new army, expressed surprise in his letter "that there is a section among the Liverpool dockers who still refuse to work overtime during the week-end and on Saturday. I feel sure that these men can hardly realize that their action in thus congesting the docks and delaying munitions of war and food required by our men at the front is having a very serious and dangerous effect and must be stopped."

"I hope this message will put things right for the future. At this time we look to every British man, whoever he may be, to do all in his power to help in carrying the war to a successful conclusion, and in this your men can do their share, thus helping their comrades now fighting in France."

FRENCH RETAKE LOST POSITIONS

Paris, March 22.—The French official communique states that after having lost the Grand and Little Reichacker Kopfs in the Vosges they have recaptured the latter place, and that a fight to retake the other summit is now proceeding. The French communique also claims that violent counter attacks of the Germans at Les Esparges, on the heights of the Meuse, were repulsed with heavy losses. It is also claimed that slight gains were made in Champagne. Germans fired numerous shells at the Soissons cathedral, which, according to the French statement, was not being used as an observation point, and furthermore a Red Cross flag was flying from it.

The communique says: "The enemy again bombarded Soissons, firing twenty-seven shells at the cathedral, which suffered considerably. Contrary to the German accusation, there was not observation post in the cathedral tower and a Red Cross flag was hoisted on it.

In the Champagne, on the evening of March 20, we made slight progress east of ridge 196, northeast of Lemesnil. Today there was merely a bombardment in this district.

"In the Argonne there was a somewhat lively fusillade throughout the day, but no infantry attack was made. At Les Eparges we maintained the ground gained yesterday, several violent counter attacks being repulsed with severe losses to the enemy."

"In the Vosges, after losing Grand Reichacker Kopf and Little Reichacker Kopf, we have retaken the latter point, and a counter attack which was made to recapture the other summit is still proceeding."

VILLA ARMY EVACUATES

Washington, March 22.—The following dispatch from Vera Cruz was received at the local Constitutionalist headquarters:

"Advices received here are to the effect that the Villistas have evacuated San Luis Potosi on the approach of General Benjamin Hill with the advance column of Obregon's division going north."

The significance of this information as explained by the Constitutionalist is that if General Villa carries out his present plan and attacks Tampico, as reported in press dispatches, he will find in his rear the hostile army led by General Obregon, numbering, it is estimated, 22,000 trained and disciplined soldiers. The army of General Gonzales at Tampico confronting General Villa's invading army is said to number between 12,000 and 15,000 men. The Villa forces do not exceed 25,000 men. According to the Constitutionalist, Villa's attacking army in the Tampico campaign will be outnumbered by nearly or quite 10,000.

Steamer Odenwald Left Port Without Clearance Papers.

CARGO WAS UNDER SUSPICION

Captain, Accused of Carrying Coal to German Cruiser Karlsruhe, Runs Afloat of Commander at El Morro, Porto Rico, and Is Compelled to Return to Harbor After Ship Is Damaged by Shell.

San Juan, P. R., March 22. — The Hamburg-American steamer Odenwald, which was running in and out of this port since the outbreak of the war, and which was suspected of carrying supplies to the German sea-raider Karlsruhe when she was in the West Indies, was fired on by United States gunners at El Morro when she attempted to leave without clearance papers. She was struck by a shell but suffered no serious injury, and returned to port.

Some time ago the Odenwald left this port with 10,000 tons of coal and returned shortly afterwards with her bunkers practically empty. On that occasion she went out without clearance papers and it was reported that the American officer in command of the port had informed the captain of the Odenwald that if he tried that game again he would fire upon the ship. The captain of the Odenwald applied for clearance papers on March 18 and they were refused, pending instructions from Washington. He started out without them and the American commander kept his word.

The Odenwald has been running in and out of San Juan since Aug. 9 of last year. She is a vessel of 2,098 tons.

THREE HUNDRED MEN DROWNED

VIENNA IN BAD PLIGHT

Rome, March 22.—A dispatch from Vienna says: "The municipality is striving to find a remedy for the scarcity of food, which is becoming more acute, and is insisting upon the cultivation of vegetables, especially of potatoes, which in future will be grown everywhere, including the cemeteries."

"It is unlikely, however, that famine can be averted, since the poor are accustomed to bread, which is very scarce. Besides food, medical supplies, cotton and wool are very scarce, since importation from America is forbidden."

"Stocks of sulphuric acid, nitric acid and saltpetre, necessary for the manufacture of explosives, will be exhausted soon. It is feared, hence a prize of 1,000,000 kronen and a title of nobility have been offered to the person who invents a new explosive which will not require the ingredients named."

NEARLY 400 MEN ATTEND FOUR BIBLE CLASSES SUNDAY

A new record was established in this city Sunday morning, when the four largest protestant churches had a total of nearly 400 men attending Bible classes and taking part in the Sunday schools. This number is said to greatly exceed any previous record, and now each of the four churches is endeavoring to beat their previous records next Sunday morning.

And in boosting the attendance of the men's classes there was a very marked increase in the number of women and children attending the Sunday schools.

At Grace M. E. church a new record of attendance was made when 151 men were present in the men's class with some nine other members of the class teaching smaller classes. This class is working for 200 out next Sunday.

At the Presbyterian church 121 men attended the class, and next Sunday an attendance exceeding 150 is expected.

At the Church of Christ 65 men were enrolled in the class, and the members are working for 75 or more for next Sunday.

More than 40 men were enrolled in the class at the First Baptist church and those in charge are working for an attendance of 100 next Sunday.

The indications are that next Sunday will witness between 500 and 600 men attending Bible classes at the four churches.

Never before has the go-to-Sunday-school habit been so pronounced in the city as at the present time, and those in touch with the movement expect that before the spring is over the attendance at the four Bible classes will reach near the 1,000 mark, and Washington will be in the foremost ranks with other cities of large Bible classes.

CRAIG BROS

It is not a minute too early to select your Spring Coat or Suit. Styles have crystalized and our collection is receiving daily endorsement from many customers.

Newness is the keynote of our offering—newness and distinctiveness without which newness is flat and undesirable.

The models in this collection are among the most recent examples of current design, and were especially selected as typifying the very spirit of the season's modes. Favored fabrics are fully represented—

Gabardines, Tailor Serges, Poplins, Failles, Chuddahs, Shepherd Checks,

Novelties—the colors in evidence fall within the range classed as "Silent—Black, Navy, Labrador, Soldat Blue, Arizona Silver, Dreadnaught Grey, Sand, Putty, Army Brown. Suit Coats are hip length and shorter, while Separate Coats are knee length and shorter. Tailored and Semi-Tailored effects predominate.

Simplicity almost to military precision is the keynote of the season. Often the pure military spirit alone dominates, as in the "Tommy Atkins" Coat and the "Tipperary" Suit. The semi-fitted, and the always good looking severely tailored models show the waist line at normal or slightly above the normal. The new Silhouette is marked by a graceful rippling fulness and reveals pointed fronts or pointed sides. It has all the charm of feminine apparel of a century ago. Crewel Embroidery is used as a trimming, together with many other unique features.

The models here bespeak a careful survey of the fashion situation. Exclusive style features and uncommon values constitute the secret of the success of this department, and yet it is no secret at all, but known to everybody who has purchased here.

Never, we feel, have assortments been more complete and comprehensive. Never have we presented garments so delightfully different in style. It will give us pleasure to show the new styles.

PLAN GREATEST S. S. MEETING EVER HELD IN COUNTY

Plans are being completed for the greatest County Sunday School Convention ever held in the county, the dates being Tuesday and Wednesday, April 6th and 7th, and the convention to be held at the First Presbyterian church in this city.

County President J. Howard Hicks announces the near completion of a program of exceptional interest, with one of the special features being a temperance debate between Messrs. Hall and Summers, of Colorado, the men who have attracted widespread attention by a lively debate which is full of interest and which brings out many points with which the average man is not familiar. The debate was given at the big convention in Columbus recently, and was the pronounced "hit" of the convention. This debate will take place on Tuesday night, April 6th.

Several of the state officers will be here, including Dr. Darlin, president of the State Sunday School Association, and Mrs. Phoebe Curtis, secretary of the State Association.

Delegations from the county's 61 Sunday schools will be in attendance

PLAINTIFF ASKS FOR ACCOUNTING

Represented by Attorney Tom S. Maddox, William S. Charters has filed action in the court of common pleas in which John E. Green and Geo. R. Cox are asked to render an accounting of certain partnership business which plaintiff claims to have entered into with defendants on February 1, 1913.

Plaintiff avers that on the above date himself and the defendants formed a partnership for the disposal of live stock, each of the partners to bear his share of the profit and loss, and that plaintiff invested $5,802.50 in the business.

Plaintiff states that the partnership continued until December 30, 1914, and that defendants have refused to render an accounting, stating that they claimed nothing was due plaintiff and no accounting necessary. He claims partnership should be closed and an accounting rendered, and this he asks done under the direction of the court.

FARMER YOUTH TOO MUCH FOR OILY STRANGER

The scheme of a confidence man which failed has come to light in Pickaway county, where an oily stranger nearly fleeced a young farm laborer out of a neat sum of money and other valuables by having the young man send his suitcase by express presumably to Lancaster, but which in reality was billed to New Holland, the stranger making the change while his victim's attention was directed elsewhere.

Lee Butler, 22 years of age, of near Circleville, is the young man who was nearly fleeced by the bunko man. He intended going to Lancaster to take up work and while awaiting a train was approached by a pleasant mannered stranger who engaged him in conversation and finally induced the young man to send his good clothes, watch and chain, part of his money, a $100 note and certificates of deposit totaling more than $100, by express, and the two were to beat their way on a freight. The stranger was to give the farmer boy employment.

After the pair had boarded a passenger train for Lancaster and the stranger disappeared, the youth became suspicious, got off at the first stop and hiring an automobile, drove back to Circleville and there found that his suitcase still reposed in the express office, billed for New Holland. He obtained persons to identify him and was given possession of the suitcase which the bunko man had so nearly captured by a clever ruse.

Can't Do It, or Try WHICH?

No one knows what he can do until he tries. You say you can't accumulate money—you can't open an Account at the Fayette County Bank? Try it! "The bees said Try—and turned flowers into honey. The Squirrel said Try—and went to the top of the tree. The snowdrop said Try—and blossomed in the cold snows of Winter." Which is it going to be with you—"I can't do it," or "I will try." —For there is not one thing in this world can be done without trying. Not one!

GOES TO OKLAHOMA TO ENTER BUSINESS

Mr. Charles B. Parker, formerly of the firm of Parker & Wood, of this city, left Sunday for Tulsa, Oklahoma to assume the management of the George B. Swope Gas Engine Company, which is located in that city, and which already has orders to keep it in operation for months. Mr. Parker will return to this city in June, and later will move his family to Tulsa to make their permanent home.

Tulsa is one of the best cities in Oklahoma, located in the heart of the oil region, and the city contains a large number of Oklahomans, including several former Fayette citizens.

The good wishes of a host of friends go with Mr. Parker for success in Tulsa.

FORTY KIDS TURNED OUT FOR LESSON

Forty youngsters, all ages and sizes, but of the same eager determination, flocked to the Y. M. C. A. Monday morning, turned in their coupons and took the first of the series of three free lessons to be given this week in the Y. M. C. A. tank.

Forty kids in the tank at once, all having the time of their lives, made a spectacle good to see. There were kids of all sorts, from all classes and conditions of society nearly, and a happier crowd never got together.

Director McClung reported good progress with his first lessons and predicts that all will be finished swimmers when the three lessons have been completed. The next two lessons will be on Wednesday and Friday mornings, and coupons for the same will be found in the Tuesday and Thursday issues of the Herald.

NINTH EPISODE

Kidnaped

CHAPTER I.

FROM his concealment amid the shrubbery Ned Warner rose to rush forward as the brilliantly lighted limousine, with its gay party of five, swept down the drive of the Villard home. His eyes were burning, he was breathing heavily, and his fingers were curved like claws, for in a moment more he intended to grapple by the throat the black Vandyked face bent smilingly over Ned's lovely runaway bride.

At that instant three shadowy figures sprang also from amid the shrubbery, two men and a woman. There was no outcry and scarcely any struggle. Ned Warner found himself suddenly seized from behind, a rough sleeve across his mouth, his arms pinioned.

He was lifted bodily and thrown as Gilbert Blye, with the grace and gallantry only possible to a polished man of the world, assisted the radiant June Warner from his luxurious limousine.

The deserted groom, his head still held in a viselike grip and his mouth stopped, saw his bride enter the house, surrounded by the gay group, the darkly handsome Blye on one side and the white mustached Orin Cunningham on the other.

It was Marie who made the gag to slip in Ned's mouth. Then Marie slipped back of the house.

The two men, one apparently a chauffeur, referred to as Henri, and the other a gardener, picked Ned up and followed her. As they passed the brightly lighted library Ned saw June's collier greet her with the height of canine joy, saw Cunningham and Blye making friends with the dog, then saw the twinkling eyed Cunningham sit in a cozy corner with June and begin an animated tete-a-tete.

The chauffeur and the gardener shrank back in among the bushes with their helpless burden.

There came a high powered racer whizzing down the drive. The man let himself in with a latchkey and, with his hands in his pockets, strolled nonchalantly into the parlor.

Mrs. Villard, talking with Gilbert Blye and Tommy Thomas, turned, and as she saw the newcomer her eyes widened imperceptibly, and a look of concern flashed down across her gentle countenance.

"Well, Bert, you're a surprise," she said.

"That's my best trick," he drawled, kissing Mrs. Villard perfunctorily. "Hello, Tommy! Howdy do, Blye?"

Villard was impressed as his eyes fell upon the fresh beauty of June.

"Mr. Villard, Mrs. Warner." The introduction was very cold, and again that concern flickered for a moment on Mrs. Villard's face as she saw her husband's eager interest. "My companion," she added, and Cunningham and Tommy Thomas, glancing at each other, smiled.

With a careless nod to Cunningham, Villard walked over to June and, taking her hand, held it while he smiled down at her with such obvious admiration that the helpless bound and gagged man beyond the library window lurched free from his captors and tugged at his bonds until they almost cut into his wrists.

Marie came back from the corner and motioned. The chauffeur and the gardener followed with the husband of the beautiful young girl, who was then smiling her courteous responses to the dissolute Bert Villard.

Marie sped quickly across the shadowy back lawn to the garage and opened the door.

"He's not to talk, and he's not to come near the house," she whispered started back, and she started forward, and she turned around in a half circle. She was well nigh distracted with the weight of her great secret, was Marie. If she told Miss June that Mr. Ned was in the garage there'd be an end of everything, and maybe it would be all for the best, or Miss June might run away again from such comfortable surroundings, and it would be all for the worse. Marie sat down and pulled her thumb; then she jumped up and pulled the other thumb. The piano began a succession of silvery notes. June, and over her bent the inordinately tall Villard.

"Well!" said the gardener in the dimness of the garage, and he brushed his arms. It was all the rest they needed. He turned ponderously toward their captive, whom they had deposited in a corner on a bench.

The gardener's one word was a question, an exclamation of relief and an expression of complete and thorough bewilderment. He was a broad Swede, and his arms hung crooked with muscles.

"I know nothing," laughed the wiry little chauffeur. He was a Frenchman with an infinitesimal mustache and a quick eye and a childlike joy in everything. "The maid of the charming mademoiselle telephones from the pantry to the garage that there is a man near the hedge who must not come near mademoiselle, who must not speak, to whom nothing must be said, and all must be prompt! Voilà! I am Henri, and all of action. I call my friend Jens."

And he tapped the huge Swede approvingly on the chest. "I bring my friend Jens swiftly by the mere force of my enthusiasm. We glide through the bushes so, like a snake. No!" He laughed and smote his friend Jens on the wide chest. "Like a snake and a bull. We creep up behind the interloper. We pounce upon him so, like a cat. No! Like a cat and a hippopotamus. We bear him to the earth. Mademoiselle trips lightly from her car, a vision, a dream, a ravishment!"

And he wafted a kiss to the general abstract of beauty. "The charming mademoiselle is safe. The interloper is here. Voilà!"

Wide Jens reached his hand into his pocket for a pipe and glanced over to where Ned sat quietly in the corner. "Well!" he said.

"Wait," replied Henri. "I shall sit here placidly. I shall smoke a cigarette—perhaps two. I shall think."

Ned Warner stirred impatiently. He gave another tug at the ropes which bound his wrist, but it was only an involuntary test. He must rest before he made another determined attempt to free himself.

He gave a sudden wrench at his bonds, struggling so fiercely to loosen them that he rose and reeled toward the door.

Huge Jens Janssen stopped Ned from falling.

The chauffeur laughed, and, springing from his seat in the touring car, he jumped up, cracked his heels together and snapped the fingers of both hands. "I have the grand plan to dispose of our friend the interloper. We shall teach him a ride of joy!" He pointed to a car.

Jens Janssen stooped and circled one arm around Ned Warner's middle and deposited his violent load in the tonneau.

Marie in the pantry hall stood wringing a corner of her dainty little lace apron. Then she dashed back into the servants' hall and folded her arms tightly upon the hollow at her waist. She dared not leave Mr. Ned where he was. She dared not do anything, and yet she must. She burst out of the rear door, was across the porch in two strides, down the steps in one jump and went swishing for the garage. As she came the touring car shot from the opposite door and went whizzing up the drive. Henri in front and in the tonneau Ned and huge Jens Janssen.

CHAPTER II.

AT parting Gilbert Blye held June's hand between both his and patted it gently, his black eyes glowing down at her, and he was smiling upon her with that suave smile which she had come to trust.

"Tomorrow night at dinner," he said, lowering his voice the slightest particle as if the remark were addressed in confidence to her, though the others were crowded eagerly round.

There was an instant of hesitation. "Then aboard the yacht!" exclaimed Tommy Thomas. She was looking at June, her deep red lips parting in a smile. June's cheeks paled. After all,

"Then aboard the yacht!" exclaimed Tommy Thomas.

as Mrs. Villard's companion it was her duty to go on this trip.

"Shall we take Bouncer?" suggested the pleasantly modulated voice of Blye. "Of course Bouncer shall go!" June declared, and this time the handsome collier, on his feet in an instant, wagged his tail so vigorously that his hind feet slid.

There was instant gratification in the faces surrounding June.

Far away in the night Henri was speeding northward. Every now and then he turned to look back and laugh, where Jens Janssen sat stolidly puffing his pipe, one immense hand constantly on the arm or the knee of Ned Warner.

"Voilà!" cried Henri in high glee as the sharp night wind cut past his face.

"Well," grunted Jens in huge content. June put herself into the hands of the agitated Marie very thoughtfully after the visitors had gone.

"What is the matter, Marie?" June's tone was quite solicitous. She became suddenly aware that Marie had been in such a state of nervous excitement as she had never exhibited before.

"Nothing, Miss June; nothing at all! I'm afraid of burglars!"

"Why, Marie, come here!" Marie came slowly over, nervously kneading some knotted pink thing in her hands. "Your eyes are feverish. You must go to bed, Marie. Wait. Bring me my medicine case and a glass of water."

Meekly Marie took what June gave her, but later she dashed down the stairs and streaked across to the garage. Empty!

At that moment Ned Warner, his hands and feet still bound and his mouth still gagged, was being gleefully deposited in a deserted woodcutter's shed in the middle of a vast, bleak grove. Through the trees the moon-

"What is the matter, Marie?"

light glinted on distant water, and the shadows of the trees lay in fantastic, twisted patterns on the hillside.

Dawn. The red glow of the sunrise, filtering through the mist of the morning, stole in at the open door of the Villard garage and found Marie, with her fists folded under her arms and the tip of her frosty nose in her elbow, loudly snoring.

She limped over to the house, plodded up to her room, dressed herself with numb fingers and after half an hour of dull eyed thought scrawled this note, which she laid on June's bed:

Dear Miss June—I am feeling better, thank you. I hope you will excuse me if I take a few hours off. I will be back for lunch. Hoping you are the same, I remain, yours affectionately, MARIE.

She tiptoed out and hurried down the hill to the station, where she caught the first commuters' train. Arriving at the city, she sought Officer Dowd and prevailed on him to phone Ned's friends and June's parents that Ned had been kidnapped.

June in a pretty little morning robe was busy among the flowers in Mrs. Villard's boudoir window conservatory and singing softly when she heard a footstep behind her. Turning, she saw Villard towering above her, his hands in the pockets of his lounging robe, and he was grinning.

"Oh!" exclaimed June, startled.

"Good morning."

"So this is friend wife's pretty new companion," observed Villard. "Well, friend wife has excellent taste."

June moved away.

"Don't be in a hurry," he chuckled. "We must get acquainted. And, suddenly reaching forward, he put his hand under her chin and turned up her face."

She jerked away, but he closed the door toward which she darted and, gathering her in his long arms, crushed her to him. June's struggles were futile and her shrieks muffled, but one pair of ears heard. There was a crash of glass, the flash of a long, lithe, white and brown body through the room, and then Villard released his hold. Bouncer! He had sunk his teeth into Villard's arms, and now he was a whirlwind of canine fury.

The man turned pale with fear, kicking and striking at the enraging animal.

"Bouncer!"

That cry from June saved Villard's life, for the dog, with a yelp of joy, was springing for his throat as he fell. The man lay back. The dog stood still, motionless. The man's hand moved nervously. The collier moved precisely that same amount. Villard did not twitch a muscle from that time on, except to speak.

"Call off the dog!" he ordered.

"Watch him, Bouncer," said June quietly.

June rose from the chair into which she had limply sunk, but a cold anger had come to replace her weakness. She walked from the room and, going to the house phone in the hall, called to the kitchen.

The Dog Was Springing For His Throat as He Fell.

"Has Mrs. Villard returned?" she inquired of the maid who answered.

"Not yet."

"Do you know where to reach her?"

"Any one down at the cottages will hunt her up and give her your message."

"Ask her to come home immediately, please. Tell her it is quite important."

She walked back to the boudoir and glanced in at the door. The two statues were as she had left them. At the sound of her footstep Bouncer wagged the tip of his tail, but not for one fleeting instant did he remove his fiery eyes from the pale gray eyes of Bert Villard.

Mrs. Villard, hurrying up the stairs within a few moments, found June in the landing alcove, white, shivering as if with cold.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Villard, but I am going at once," she said before the older woman had even a chance to speak.

"Why, child?" Mrs. Villard's face was full of concern, but as she stared at June her brows knotted and a flush crept into her cheeks—"what—what is the matter?" she faltered.

June was already halfway up the stairs. She turned. Mrs. Villard, with out a word, followed her. Side by side the two women stood looking at the man and the dog. Mrs. Villard needed no explanation to tell her what had happened. For the first time in her married life she gave way to anger.

"You beast!" she cried, her cheeks scarlet and her eyes flashing. "This is the last! I warned you to leave this girl alone! I hate you! I could see you torn to shreds! Go on, Bouncer!"

The collier crouched at June's feet. The man rose cautiously.

"You forget!" husked the man. "We have a bargain!"

Mrs. Villard lowered her eyes for a moment.

"It is broken!" she suddenly flared. "You have paid me well, and I have served you well. But we were not to interfere with each other's life. You have interfered with mine. I am through!"

She stripped her hands of her rings and threw them at him. She swept from the room, followed by June and Bouncer. They heard the man telephoning for his racer at a nearby garage, and while Mrs. Villard was still packing her clothing her husband came along the hall. He stopped at the door.

"I don't think you will find that your new line of work will pay you as well as being my wife," the man snarled.

Mrs. Villard sprang to the door and closed it in his face, and Villard laughed mockingly.

"He is a beast!" said Mrs. Villard and sat down as if she wished to say something more. There was the sound of wheels at the door. Mrs. Villard suddenly buried her face in her hands and cried.

CHAPTER III.

ONEY! June was face to face with another angle of that eternal problem, which, it seemed to her, had complicated the entire relationship of men and women. Mrs. Villard had plainly sold herself, and the price is never great enough for any woman who has done that. Always in June's rapidly widening observation the man gave and the woman received, and her very dependence made the question of matrimony one of essential barter and sale. It was wrong! It destroyed the very source and fount of love. Was there no remedy? June, shaken though she was by her painful experience of the morning, was strengthened in her own resolve. The answer to the problem was independence even though she suffered in the attainment of it, even though Ned suffered. Their love would be all the stronger for it, and it would be pure at ways.

Could she have seen Ned at that moment all her theories and all her deductions would have taken swift flight, and she would have bathed with her tears the swollen wrist which he had just freed from the rough rope that had bound it.

Slowly and with infinite pain Ned finally freed his hands. They were quivering as, with a mighty effort, he raised them to the back of his head and fumbled with the knot which held his gag in place. It seemed ages before he was able to remove that tight bandage. He removed the tight things from around his ankles. He limped awkwardly for half a mile, bent and stooped like an old man, but exercise restored him, and by the time he found a road he was his vigorous self again and full of the dogged determination which had led him so far in the pursuit of his runaway bride.

Down the highway a mile or so he found an obscure roadhouse, and he strode in at the saloon door.

While ordering a "bracer" for his shattered nerves he saw his two captors sitting at a table. He rushed madly at them and knocked them both to the floor. Dashing out of the place, he saw their auto. He jumped in, pressed the starting button and sped away.

The house of Mrs. Villard was closed and locked when Ned arrived there at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

In the meantime June and Mrs. Villard and Bouncer were snugly ensconced in a pleasant hotel downtown, and before her at the writing table Mrs. Villard held open a bank book, its figures representing the price she had received for the sale of her ten best years, and she had spent an hour in the debate of whether to give up her earnings. June had been taken into that debate, but she had been able to offer no argument on either side. She had realized at last a great and sudden truth—that every woman's problem must be for herself alone.

Marie meantime, with Officer Dowd as interpreter, had telephoned everywhere for news of Ned Warner, but without result; then in despair she telephoned the Villard house to excuse her absence to June. That number did not answer after repeated trials. Marie, more frantic than ever and feeling sure that she was about to lose her mind, hurried straight down to the station and took a train to the Villard place.

It was closed and locked. Even the servants were gone, but at the carriage entrance stood the touring car. The garage—empty too! There were no signs that Jens Janssen or Henri had returned.

Just as Marie was pondering over this remarkable circumstance there came trudging down the drive a natty little figure, its limbs neatly incased in leather leggings, its cap pushed on the back of its head, but its tiny little mustache all fuzzy. It was Henri, and in his eyes was a very great weariness.

"Where is Mr. Ned?" screamed Marie.

"Name of the good Lord!" groaned Henri. "He is watching the day perhaps. Such a headache!" And Henri pressed his thumping brow.

"Where is Jens?"

"Vanished! I wake up. Jens is no more! He has had a fight, they say. He has been licked, they say. The enormous ruffian who is strong enough to box my friend Jens has stolen the machine. Here it is. Voilà! Jens must have returned!"

Marie shook Henri by the sleeve.

"Where is Mr. Ned?" she demanded.

"In the woods," Henri waved his arms comprehensively.

"Not tied?"

"As you saw him, Mlle. Marie." And once more Henri was able to laugh. He blew a kiss to the sky. "It was well executed, mademoiselle. It was Henri, myself, who—"

Marie got into the car.

"You take me right out there," she ordered.

"Bravo!" he approved. "It is another good enterprise! I have enthusiasm!"

"Then don't talk about it!" snapped Marie, and lightly as a cat Henri climbed over his spare tires, plumped into the seat beside Marie, and away they sped.

At 7:15 that night Bobbie and Iris Blethering, the latter June Warner's bosomest of bosom friends, strolled into the Cafe New York. Suddenly Iris grabbed Bobbie by the arm, and he turned to her in surprise. Iris for the first time in her life was speechless, and her face was pale, but she could look. She was staring at a table in the corner. There sat the runaway bride, laughing and chatting happily with a vivacious brunette, a pleasant faced lady of mature years, a dark, handsome man with a black Vandyke, a pink faced, white mustached man who bore all the evidences of a bon vivant and a heavy, round headed man with thick eyelids!

Her moment of paralysis past, the hearty Iris made a straight dive for June's table, and it was Bobbie's turn to clutch her by the arm.

"Wait a minute," he counseled.

"But there's June!" gasped Iris.

"Look here," he whispered in her ear while he held her, "what can we do? We interfered once and messed it all up. Now, the right thing to do is to telephone Ned."

Iris Blethering regarded her husband with a dawning approbation. It was the first time he had ever thought faster than she, and she was proud of him for it.

"I'll sit right behind this post and watch that table!" Iris promptly decided. "You telephone, and hurry up. But I do wish I had a good place to cry!"

And, suppressing the tendency of her bosom to heave, she dashed away a ready tear and plumped into a chair behind the post.

Ned was at home when Bobbie called. He was ready to start on any journey in search of June—and Gilbert Blye! When he arrived at the cafe he found Iris and Bobbie Blethering in a state of quivering excitement.

"You're just in time!" gasped Iris.

"They're leaving," said Bobbie.

They hurried into the vast, richly decorated, glittering cafe. About one of the tables in the far corner were the two whom Ned had sought since the day of his wedding.

All the pentup murder which had seethed in Ned Warner's heart for days flamed into his eyes as, with an oath, he started for the table.

"Stop him, Bobbie! Stop him!" suddenly cried Iris Blethering, and, jumping in front of Ned, she threw her arms about his neck and hung her weight upon him, while Bobbie, also frightened by the terrible expression of Ned's countenance, impeded his progress on the other side.

Ned had turned to shake off his clogging friends when June, drawn by some intangible force, wheeled slowly and looked in that direction. She saw only that it was her husband.

"Ned!" she cried.

Both Cunningham and Blye paled as they saw that movement and what had caused it. As by a simultaneous impulse they took her by the arms, one on each side, and turned her toward the corner entrance near which they had sat.

"I won't go!" she declared and tried to hang back, but they forced her out of the door.

Ned Warner saw June's piteous face as she half turned it to look back, saw her being kidnaped from under his very eyes, and, bursting through the group which impeded him, he made a dash among the tables and across the restaurant.

Too late! He reached the corner entrance only in time to see Blye's luxurious limousine whirl away up the street. June was frantically determined that she would not go where they were taking her. Mrs. Villard was pale and panic stricken, but the other three carried out their pretense of laughing coercion. On the front seat with Scatti, Blye's wide featured Italian chauffeur, sat T. J. Edwards, the round headed, heavy man, and his thick lidded eyes peered constantly back through the glass, and there was a firm set to his thick lips.

There was no one at the lonely dock upon which the swiftly speeding limousine stopped abruptly, no one to

"We've had quite enough of this hysteria. You're going along!"

hear or heed the call for help which June tried to send up above the noisy laughter of five of her companions, for now Edwards and Scatti joined loudly in the hilarity.

There was a cold, stern voice in June's ear.

"We've had quite enough of this hysteria. You're going along!" It was the voice of Gilbert Blye.

It was he who, with Orin Cunningham, forced her from a lonely dock into the motorboat which lay alongside, and in another moment all except Scatti were speeding swiftly away toward the long, low yacht which lay midway of the misty river.

as the men passed her with their burden. She caught Ned's indignant eyes fixed on her, and that glare threw her into a panic. "Whatever you do, don't hurt him!" she hastily added. "Don't hurt him!"

Outside the door Marie paused. Her eyes were distended until they were perfectly round, and her high cheek bones gleamed white. She put the knuckles of her right hand against her teeth and looked over at the garage. She pulled at the lobe of her ear with her left hand and looked in the house. She

YOUTH BACKS THIS PAIR IN 500-MILER

ALLEY

O'DONNELL

Young America will center its hopes in the next Indianapolis 500-mile race on Tom Alley and Eddie O'Donnell, who are entered for the contest at the wheel of two Duesenberg cars. Both O'Donnell and Alley have but recently climbed to fame, the former by taking a third in the last race at Corona at the hair-raising speed of 85.7 miles an hour, and the latter by breaking the world's 100-mile dirt track record at Minneapolis last fall.

Since that time communities in Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Colorado and Kansas have been terrorized by similar crimes.

In every instance the murderer killed an entire family as they slept by the blows of an ax. Scores of persons have been arrested, but invariably the police were forced to release them for lack of evidence.

A list of some of the most notable ax murders follows:

H. C. Wayne, wife and child, and
Mrs. A. J. Burnham and two children,
Colorado Springs, Colo., September, 1911.

William E. Dawson, wife and daughter, Monmouth, Ill., September, 1911.
William Showman, wife and three children, Ellsworth, Kan., October, 1911.

Rollin Hudson and wife, Paola,
Kan., June, 1912.

J. E. Moore, four children and two girl guests, Villisca, Ia., June, 1912.

Mrs. Mary J. Wilson and Mrs.
George Moore, Columbia, Mo., December, 1912.

Jacob Neslesla, his wife, their daughter and the latter's infant, Blue

Island, Ill., July, 1914.

Mrs. E. B. Matthews, eighty, Hartsburg, Mo., October, 1914.

Mitchell's arrest followed a search of more than three years. He had been employed near Monmouth, but disappeared after the murders in the Dawson house. He was later traced to Independence, Mo., and from there to St. Louis.

The prisoner was taken back to Monmouth by Chief of Police Morris-son and Mayor Brown of that city.

Before leaving, Chief Morrison said:

"Dawson, his wife and daughter were murdered by three negroes, two men and a woman; revenge for attentions which the negroes believed Dawson had shown their relatives was the motive for the crime; the negro woman in the case I will arrest soon; the other man is now in the Joliet (Ill.)
penitentiary."

He added that he had no evidence that these negroes were connected with any other ax murders.

PETROGRAD'S STATEMENT

Petrograd, March 22.—The official war office statement says: "The Russian movement on Memel caused great uneasiness, and the German dispositions along the rest of the front seem to indicate a prolonged lull is about to begin."

"In Bukovina a decisive struggle for the possession of Czernowitz is now expected. In the Caucasus the Russians are advancing in the direction of the sea, thus depriving the enemy of all means of operating in the Transcaucasian region or transporting troops and munitions to Erzerum.
In the direction of Tchoruk our artillery and infantry repulsed Turkish attempts to seize positions we had occupied previously. In the direction of Olti our advance units successfully progressed after putting to flight bands of Askar and Turks. On the other parts of the front there was no fighting."

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get
at the Cause and Remove it

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.
People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently
but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action,
clearing the blood and gently purifying
the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening,
gripping cathartics are derived from Dr.
Edwards' Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.
Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil.
You will know them by their olive color.

FREIGHTER IS VICTIM OF TORPEDO

Cairntorr's Crew Escape After Encounter With Submarine.

London, March 22.—The British steamship Cairntorr was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Beach Head, on the channel coast, fifteen miles east of Brighton. The attack was made without warning, but the crew of thirty-two men launched boats and reached land in safety.
The vessel remained afloat for three hours after the explosion of the torpedo.

The Cairntorr was a steel freighter of 3,588 tons and was built at New Castle in 1904. She was owned by Cairns, Noble & Co.

OHIO BRIEFS

Lynching Is Averted.

Portsmouth, O., March 22.—Mrs.
William Barker, wife of a Norfolk and Western foreman, of near Haverhill, was attacked by a young man as she was walking along the railroad tracks near her home. Her condition is reported to be critical. W. H. Henkel, twenty, formerly employed at the Norfolk and Western terminal in this city, is being held at the county jail charged with the crime. Prompt arrival on the scene by Sheriff Smith prevented a lynching, after Henkel
had been captured by a posse of men headed by the husband of the woman, who pursued him on a handcar. Hen-kel denies he is guilty.

Will Join Her Husband.

Elyria, O., March 22.—Mrs. William Graves Sharp, wife of the American ambassador to France, will sail with their five children on the French liner Patria from New York Thursday to join her husband at Paris. The Patria will take a southern route to Marseilles in order to avoid the danger of submarines as much as possible.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Findlay, O., March 22.—The body of Elias Steen, sixty-six, residing near Vanlue, was found hanging to a tree.
He had been dead for several hours.
Eleven months ago Steen's son, who had been a teacher in the Philippines returned home and hanged himself.
The father used the same tree and limb that his son did.

Dedicate New Church.

Steubenville, O., March 22.—Community Congregational church's new edifice, just completed at a cost of $25,000 was dedicated by Rev. H. S.
Macayall of Akron. Rev. G. Albert
Trout is pastor.

Car Kills Motor Cop.

Springfield, O., March 22.—In responding to a call Motorcycle Officer James F. Llewellyn, twenty-five, collided with a streetcar and sustained injuries which caused his death half an hour later.

Congressman Gard Ill.

Hamilton, O., March 22.—Word was received that Congressman Warren
Gard is critically ill in Washington.
Postmaster Homer Gard was called to Washington.

New Postoffice Opened.

Dayton, March 22.—Dayton's $1,000,
000 postoffice, which was dedicated
New Year's day, was opened today for business.

TO FOLLOW PRECEDENT

Columbus, March 22.—Republican administration and legislative leaders intend to go straight ahead and to continue to follow the precedent set by the last Democratic legislature of not requiring a two-thirds vote on bills declared to be emergencies, but taking a two-thirds vote only on the declaratory clause appended to the bill.

Attorney General Turner expects to have ready tonight his official opinion interpreting the constitutional provision of procedure in enacting emergency laws which are exempt from referendum.

Legislative leaders say they have ascertained that he will hold the wording of the constitution too plain to be misunderstood, that the bill itself must have a two-thirds affirmative vote, and that the procedure of the Cox and Willis legislatures has been quite wrong.

They propose to ignore Turner's ruling, though he is the official legal adviser both to the administration

GENERAL SCOTT SOME DIPLOMAT

Salt Lake, Utah, March 22.—General Scott is camping sixty-five miles south of Thompsons with Tee-Ne-Gat, Old Polk Posey and a son of Posey's.
He is accompanied only by his orderly and a resident of Bluff, who is driving the team over and which is carrying the army officer and his prisoners. The feat of General Scott in capturing Old Polk after he had once failed to get into communication with him is holding the west's admiration.
The difficulty experienced by the army officer in going out in the mystery land and through the aid of Navajo runners getting Polk and Posey to confer with him is regarded as one of the bravest and most diplomatic actions taken in the west in years.

FARMERS SHOW DEEP INTEREST IN COMING EVENT

Farmers throughout the county are showing deep interest in the coming mass meeting to be held in this city on March 30, stock sales day, to be addressed by Hon. A. P. Sandies and Dr. Paul Fischer, concerning the swine plague eradication work in Fayette county, and the meeting is to be open to everyone, with everybody free to ask any questions and discuss matters pertaining to the eradication work.

The meeting is the outgrowth of an open meeting held in the Common Pleas court room, Saturday afternoon, and presided over by Mr. R. G. Jefferson, president of the Fayette County Fair Board.

It is expected that both those in favor of the work and those opposed to a continuance of the eradication work, will be present and take part in the discussions, so that every detail will be discussed at length and everything explained to the best of the ability of both speakers.

LEWIS D. SYESTER WAS WIDELY KNOWN

Lewis D. Syester, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Parrett, formerly of this city, who died in Hagerstown, Md., Friday evening, was a man of more than average ability until stricken sometime ago through continued ill health.

During frequent visits at his wife's former home in this city he had made a number of friends and acquaintances, who learned of his critical condition and subsequent death with personal regret and deep sympathy for his family.

Regarding Mr. Syester the "Evening Globe," of Hagerstown, says in part:

"Mr. Syester was a lawyer whose judgment was exceptionally able and in his profession he was successful. In addition to his profession Mr. Syester was a man of a religious nature and has spoken publicly on different occasions in a religious way.

"While attending the Hagerstown Academy he was for three years editor of the High School Journal. He was president of his class in Dickinson College. After leaving college he was for nine months editor of the Evening Times, Chamberland, and later associated with the Philadelphia Times. Subsequently he returned to Hagerstown and became editor of the Herald and Torchlight, and at different times was employed on the Mail and The Globe. He was Democratic candidate for the Maryland Legislature in November, 1897, and was elected by a vote that was next to the highest received by the eight candidates of the two parties.

"Mr. Syester was an aide de camp to the staff of General Mumford, quartermaster-general of Maryland. He married Miss Helen Parrett of Ohio, who was graduated from the Wilson College, Chambersburg, who survives him, with two children, Lewis D., Jr., and Jane Syester. His mother also survives, and brother, Andrew Syester, of Washington, and sisters, Mrs. Joseph W. Cox, Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. Hovey, Philadelphia."

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION REORGANIZES

In compliance with the provisions of the statutes under which the County Boards of Education work, the Fayette County Board of Education met Saturday afternoon and proceeded to reorganize for the fiscal year, by electing the following officers: Wilson Morris, president; Frank Minnick, vice president. Supt. of Schools Frank M. Allen is clerk of the Board as provided by law.

The board adjourned to meet Saturday afternoon of this week, when the work of re-districting the county will be taken up, and it is understood the county will be re-districted along township lines.

The matter of districting the county has been a perplexing problem to the Board, and it is hoped by re-districting the county the problem will be eliminated.

JUNIOR LEADERS VISIT SPRINGFIELD

Secretary Patton of the Y. M. C. A. motored to Springfield Sunday taking with him four boys—members of the Junior cabinet—to attend a big meeting of boys at the Springfield Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. Harold Hays, George O'Brian, Glenn Boots and Richard Willis comprised the representation.

The Springfield meeting was a big one and a feature of it was an address by C. P. Shively, former German instructor and athletic coach in the local high school who is now occupying a similar capacity in the High school faculty of Springfield. Mr. Shively gave an interesting talk along the line of clean athletics.

CLOSES SERIES OF POPULAR SERMONS

Rev. Wm. Boynton Gage closed an exceptionally interesting and out of the ordinary series of sermons presenting sin as found in literature, Sunday evening.

One of the late novels, "In the Eyes of the World," by Harold Bell Wright, was ably discussed as the last of the series.

The choir rendered special music, Mrs. Welter Shoop rendering the solo, "The Sinner and the Song."

The Sunday evening services of the Presbyterian church are of a popular character and largely attended.

BOARD AT WORK REVISING CATALOG

Among other matters taken up by the Fayette County Fair Board, Saturday afternoon, was the work of revising the fair catalog with a view to offering additional premiums and making other changes calculated to be of interest to patrons of the fair and to arouse greater interest in various departments of the fair.

After a lengthy session the board adjourned to meet next Saturday afternoon.

A feature of Saturday's meeting was a dinner given to the members of the board by Mr. Howard Hagler.

REALTY TITLES ARE REGISTERED

Three more land title registrations have just been completed in Probate Court, making a total of 16 titles guaranteed in Probate Court under the Torrens law.

Those having titles registered and the cost of registration are: Roy T. McClure, $29.41; Tom McKitterick, $21.67; Elmer Hutchinson, $45.26.

The Hutchison property consists of 50 acres of land in Jefferson township, and the cost to have the title forever guaranteed was divided as follows: Probate court, $3; examiner $23.75; publication $4.97; guardian ad lib. $3; recorder $2; sheriff $2.83; postage $0.96. Assurance fund, going to the state (rate $1 per $1,000 valuation) $4.75.

The number of titles undergoing registration is on the increase and it is expected that when property owners more fully realize the advantages to be derived under the guarantee furnished by the Torrens process, that they will take steps at once to forever guarantee the titles to their property.

OPENS SERIES OF SPLENDID SERMONS

A series of sermons under the general topic of "Eight Great Witnesses" was opened by Rev. F. E. Ross in Grace M. E. church, Sunday morning, with a special sermon on "Heredity," Sunday night.

Large audiences attended both morning and night services, and the splendid sermons presented by the pastor showed exhaustive study, and greatly appealed to his auditors. The theme of his opening sermon Sunday morning was "God and the World."

Next Sunday morning he speaks on "The Witness of Prophecy" and in the evening a companion sermon of the one rendered Sunday night, the topic of the evening sermon to be "Environment."

POLICE MADE TWO ARRESTS SATURDAY

The police made two arrests Saturday night, the arrested in each case being charged with drunkenness. Will Aiken, arrested by Officer Baughn, appeared before the mayor Monday morning and after pleading guilty paid his fine of $5 and the costs. Otis Rowe, arrested by Chief Moore and Officer Bell, will be arraigned before Mayor Coffey tonight.

The Bee's Stinging Apparatus.—A bee's sting, unlike that of a wasp, is always left in the wound, so the first thing to do is to remove it. Do not take it between finger and thumb, for that will cause it to open and release more of its poison. The right method is to push it out by rubbing up against it with the back of the thumb nail. To remove the pain there are many remedies, most of them homely. Here are a few: A slice of onion, ordinary laundry blue, sal volatile, honey, earth moistened with saliva. One or another of these remedies is always at hand.—Exchange.

Loses No Time in Futile Argument.—"It is a waste of time to argue with fools," stated the positive man. "I consider any man a fool who is so blind and bigoted that he is unable to see a thing as I see it. Accordingly I simply state my proposition and walk away when he begins to argue."—Kansas City Star.

Another Way.—"People kick and also make a great many bad jokes about hash," said the landlady to the cook. "Yes."

"So don't work the scraps into hash. Make 'em into salad."—Kansas City Journal.

The State Highway Department is advertising for bids for the paving of some 823 feet of roadway from the old corporation line on North street to the end of the paving improvement on the Jeffersonville pike, the bids to close April 2nd, at two o'clock.

The road is to be paved 16 feet in width, and the estimated cost of the improvement is $2,872.50, and the improvement to be completed by August first. The road is to be paved with brick, and when completed will connect the mile of paving on the Jeffersonville pike with the paving on North street, extending into the city to East street.

S. S. CONVENTION IN GOOD HOPE

The Sunday schools of Wayne township held a most interesting convention in the M. E. church of Good Hope Sunday afternoon.

There was a large attendance and splendid reports given from the various Sunday schools of the county.

Rev. Wm. Boynton Gage, of the First Presbyterian church of this city, made an excellent address on "Reverence for the Church has its Beginning in the Sunday School."

State Highway Commissioner.

For bread the merchant labors long and late;
For bread the beggar goes from gate to gate;
For bread the sailor loses hearth and home;
A thousand miles away bread seekers roam
For bread wild birds fall in nets and gins;
For bread do men commit a thousand sins;
For bread men study all that men may know;
The house that wanteth bread is filled with woe.
'Tis bread unites the family as one—
Its lack divides the father from the son.
For the lover of home, or the wanderlust,
The best of good bread is SAUER'S BUTTER KRUST.
